

MEDICARE INFORMATION

OneTouch® testing supplies are ALWAYS covered by Medicare Part B*

After you meet your Part B deductible:

- You pay 20% of Medicare's allowable, $1.66 for a box of 50 test strips.
- You may have a $0 co-pay with a supplemental health plan.

Understanding how test strips are covered by Medicare:

Part B: (Traditional Medicare)

Covers diabetes testing supplies including OneTouch® test strips and lancets. If you only have this coverage, use your red, white and blue card.

Part C: (Medicare Advantage)

Private Insurance companies manage Medicare Advantage plans; co-pays or co-insurance and out-of-pocket maximums may apply. The insurance plan determines which brand(s) of diabetes testing products are covered and the cost. If you have this coverage, your plan card should be used instead of your Medicare red, white and blue card.

Medicare plus Medicaid: (Dual Eligible)

Medicare Part B acts as the primary insurance, and Medicaid can be used as secondary insurance to bring down your out-of-pocket cost on your diabetes testing supplies. If you have this insurance, give your pharmacist your Medicare Part B red, white and blue card.

If your Medicare Part B claim was rejected at pharmacy, confirm whether:

- 1 You have met your deductible.
- 2 The pharmacist mistakenly ran Part D instead of billing Part B (your red, white and blue card).
- 3 You have a Medicare Advantage plan that doesn't cover the same diabetic testing products as Traditional Medicare.
- 4 Your prescription is for a larger quantity than Medicare allows. If you require additional test strips, talk to your healthcare provider.
